Abstract: This article discussed the concept of readers' conference held in information library institutions and its types.

Key words: reader, conference, genre, topic, discussion, scientific, book, event.

Library is used in Arabic, kutub - "books", in Persian, room - "house" means a place where information is collected. Information can be in the form of books, newspapers, magazines, video and audiotapes, optical discs, etc. Libraries can be organized by an organization or an individual.

There are public, scientific and special types of libraries in our country. Public libraries use active and effective methods in sorting literature and delivering it to a wide readership, promoting books for different groups of readers, and managing reading. This group includes urban and rural libraries in the system of the Ministry of Culture of Uzbekistan, libraries of trade unions in enterprises, libraries in clubs, houses of culture.

Libraries take an active part in the development of society, spiritual and cultural life, well-rounded human education with the help of their funds. The library staff chooses forms and methods of public work, prepares and conducts it according to the content of literature, according to the purpose and interest of each reader.

Readers' conference is one of the complex events, in the course of which all individual and public methods of working with readers are used. A period of 1-1.5 months will be allocated for holding the book readers' conference. All work is carried out on the basis of a plan and order, and a committee is formed.

Members of the committee: the head of the library, employees, heads of organizations that can be sponsored, representatives of mass media, three or four active readers. The tasks to be performed during one month or one and a half months, and the persons responsible for them, as well as the deadline, are indicated. These are: the theme of the conference, conducting advertising work, providing information about the issues to be discussed, reproducing a copy of the book selected for discussion with the help of other libraries, preparing the manager who will conduct the conference, identifying the speakers, working with them individually, checking the book. preparing and conducting exhibitions and library posters, various booklets, preparing, decorating, equipping the conference venue, etc.

The announcement of the readers' conference is made one to one and a half months before the time of the conference. It contains a list of issues to be discussed and necessary literature for preparation. The most responsible process at the conference is to work with readers who want to participate with their opinions, individual and group conversations with them, advice to the reader. is important in preparing for exit to z.

Familiarizing the speakers with critical literature and other people's opinions about the work will help the discussion to be effective. It is necessary for the reader to be able to express his opinion independently.

The librarian should teach the reader to express his opinion in an orderly, fluent and clear manner during the conversation with the reader. However, the reader does not need to prepare the text in advance. This makes the conference lifeless, dry, ineffective. The librarian needs to determine what issue the reader wants to comment on. If the reader thinks wrongly, he should be able to explain that he is wrong and guide him to the right path. But he should not forget to treat the reader's opinion with respect.

The conference opens with an introduction by the manager. The moderator briefly talks about the work put up for discussion, the purpose and direction of the discussion, the issues to be resolved, and the author's work. Then it is the turn of other speakers.

Based on the plan, 7-8 readers will speak. Conferences dedicated to one book are widely used in the activities of almost all types of libraries in order to promote the best scientific and artistic works, literature related to the production of science. Works that realistically reflect life's problems, glorify humanity, hard work, love and affection, and are based on patriotism and national faith are selected. Recently, conferences have been held on a large scale based on works reflecting our high spiritual values and examples of our spiritual heritage.

This will help the conference to run smoothly and in an orderly manner, will help the active participation of readers, and will increase its impact on readers.

In some scientific libraries, scientific, scientific-popular and industrial works are also selected. They discuss more scientific issues and their solution, their role in production and scientific development.

²Conferences dedicated to the work of one author. On the occasion of anniversaries and birthdays of famous writers or poets, discussions are organized to promote the works of these authors. If possible, the author himself participates in such conferences. Such an opportunity is more often found in the activities of libraries located in the suburbs of the capital or region. Such discussions are very interesting, because the author himself meets the readers face to face, listens to their opinions, and the readers communicate directly with the author himself, but the author's participation should not interfere with the readers and the discussion should not turn into a meeting.

In conclusion, the use of the help of a qualified specialist in the organization of the Readers' Conference will increase its effectiveness. The person leading the discussion can be an expert in the field, who in the introduction talks about the importance of the discussed book for production, the economic efficiency of the innovations recommended in it, the need for their widespread implementation, and relates it to the state and development of this area.
